Dr. Gonzalez Ponciano holds degrees in anthropology from Stanford University (M.A.) and the University of Texas at Austin (Ph.D.), and is a tenured Professor at the Institute of Anthropological Research of the Universidad Nacional Autónoma de México (UNAM). His current research focuses on the history of tourism and the construction of the exotic in the Mayan region. He is also working on a book about socio-racial formation in Guatemala, which analyzes the dilemmas of Whiteness and Indigenismo, and the politics of racism and anti-racism in Mesoamerica. His recent publications include the co-edited volume México y Guatemala: Entre el liberalismo y la democracia multicultural (2009) and “The Shumo Challenge: White Class Privilege and the Post-Race, Post-Genocide Alliances of Cosmopolitanism from Below” (McAllister and Nelson, eds., 2013). Gonzalez Ponciano was previously a full-time researcher at the UNAM's Centro de Estudios Mayas and a tenured Professor at the Universidad Autónoma de Chiapas.
